

Katherine Pischke-Winn

Kathy graduated from Northern Illinois University with a Bachelor of Arts (BA) degree in Sociology; received an Associates (AD) degree in Nursing from the College of DuPage; a Master's of Business Administration (MBA) from the University of Illinois, Chicago (UIC) and her MS-Nursing from UIC's College of Nursing.

Kathy is the Magnet Program Director and Director of Nursing Shared Governance at the University of Chicago, Medicine (UCM). Prior to joining UCM, she was the Director of Clinical Innovation, Research and Professional Development at Advocate Good Shepherd Hospital, Barrington, IL and led the hospital in attaining the American Nurses' Credentialing Center's (ANCC) Magnet recognition award. She was the Magnet Program Director at the University of Illinois, Chicago (UIC), and was the Coordinator of UIC's College of Nursing's Innovation and Practice Department. She remains an adjunct faculty member at UIC's College of Nursing and at Elmhurst College.

Kathy spent the majority of her career at Rush University Medical Center, Chicago as a neonatal staff nurse, shared governance President, and a project manager at Rush's College of Nursing.

She presents nationally on patient safety, shared decision-making, and interprofessional education, and has published on patient safety and process improvement work.